Challenge ref. 1B4

Tip: a great essay is one where you take your reader through your ideas and they can clearly understand how the ideas lead on from each other. This means they are more likely to agree with your conclusion!

Introduction

What are you writing about?

- What is the main argument that you are trying to make?
- What is it that you are going to compare or explore?

First point

What is your first point, or most important thing that you have found out?

- What examples can you give?
- What interesting comparisons or links can you make in these examples?
- What analysis have you done of these ideas?

Next point

What is your next point, or thing that you have found out?

- What examples can you give?
- What interesting comparisons or links can you make in these examples?
- What analysis have you done of these ideas?

Next point

What is your next point, or thing that you have found out?

- What examples can you give?
- What interesting comparisons or links can you make in these examples?
- What analysis have you done of these ideas?

Conclusion

What is your conclusion?

- Look at all the links that you have made on the right. Summarise the way that the argument has moved on in these boxes and make the links clear again. Use these ideas to come to a final clear conclusion for your piece of writing.
